Between the Partles,

The arrests were discouraged because of the expense to the authorities. Friday a camp was formed by tramps and during the day lifty congregated about the place and fielded the people.

During the day numerous robberies were combilited and at night people feeling their property not safe determined to drive the tramps away. Twenty-live citizens a peared at the camp and erdered the tramps to leave.

The order was met with a defiant refueal and the citizens fired in the air. The tramps at once described the camp and from places of concealment fired into the crowd. The citizens returned the fire and a running light was kept up for an hour. None-of the tramps, so far as known, was hurt. Several arrests were made.

And Ergage in a Free Fight in a New York Saloon.

New York, Aug. 10. Soily Smith Thursday night visited a saloon at the corner of Sixth avenue and Twenty-eighth streets. About five minutes later Johnny Murphy, the "Boston bantam," entered the saloon, accompanied by Eddie Sweeney. Murphy stated that he came to recure a match with some good featherweight and added that he would prefer to box Plimmer. Murphy addressed his remarks to the proprietor of the saloon. "Till fight you." Soily is reported to have said, "and I think I can lick you, Johnnie. Get on the scales and see how much you weigh. 'I think I am just a few pounds heavier."

"I'm no scale fighter," Murphy said and pointedly declared that he meant to fight Plimmer or no one else. Murphy, Smith and Sweeney hegan to quarrel, and eventually engaged in a free fight. They pummelled each other over the head and body. Smith says he knocked Murphy clean out and gave Sweeney a beating. Smith received a few cuts behind the ear and is also hurt about the face. "It is probable that Murphy and Smith may now be matched to light it out in a 24 foot ring.

What threatened to be a disastrous fire broke out on Powder House hill Brurswick, at about three oclock briddy morring. When the slaim was first given the dwelling house of James 6. Minott was ablaze and the barn and ell of the adjoining house had caught the wind was in a direction to communicate the fire to a long low of adjoining buildings and at one time five had caught. There was but one hydrant to draw from and the stream was rather weak. Fortunitely the breeze subsided and all but two of the buildings were saved. The dwelling house of air Minott had just been built and the family were to have moved in this mouth. The fire was undoubtedly set by tramps some of whom were seen near the house by partice returning from a lawn fest; startled ty a cry cf.agony coming from his compation, and turning around was horrified to find a huge snake rapidly coiling itself about the body of his companion. Kernn on his knees was attempting to grasp the neck of the reptile, but without success. E sworth was unable to offer as a stance to his frightened companion. The coffs were slowly tightening and crushing the life out of the helpleus young man, for his right arm was plaioned to his side. Suddenly the snake shot his head in midular with its forked tongue carting backward and forward and its eyes centered on the face of Kernn resdy for the fatal plunge. With one mighty effort Kernn seized the reptile by the neck and Elsworth came to his resone. With both hands he pressed the head of the rock and then Kernn fell unconsitors. Polling a penking from his pocket, Elsworth severed the head of the monster. The coils were slowly loosened sud after in hour the young man revived.
